NAZI ARMY TRAPPED IN STARAYA-RUSSA AREA

Russians Battle To Encircle Foe Near Lake Ilmen

German-Fascist Forces Reported Suffering Great Losses

Red Ski Troops Take Leading Part in Terrific Assaults

MOSCOW, Thursday, Feb. 26. (AP)—The Red army's "ring around the Sixteenth Nazi army on the Staraya Russa front is tightening," a dispatch direct from that front said today, "and several more enemy garrisons have been surrounded and are being annihilated."

By EDDY GILMORE
MOSCOW, Thursday, Feb. 26. (AP)—The Red army's strangulation of a German army trapped in the Staraya Russa area appeared today to be the first stage of a maneuver aimed at trapping all Nazi forces in the bloody northwestern corner of Russia.

"The German-Fascist forces are suffering great losses in manpower and equipment," the regular mid-night communiqué said. "During Feb. 25 our troops continued to advance and occupied a number of populated places."

An indication that the Red army had captured strategic Staraya Russa itself, 140 miles south of Leningrad just below Lake Ilmen, came in a graphic Russian dispatch dated from that city.

This dispatch said furious fighting was continuing after yesterday's official announcement that the Sixteenth Nazi army had been surrounded, with 12,000 Germans already killed, and that the Red army's ring around the Sixteenth Nazi army.

Soviet aviation protected these reinforcements as well as propeller-driven sledges bearing Russian artillery, the correspondent said. Tractors also were being used to haul big Soviet guns over westward.

Early today the Russians issued a supplementary communiqué which told how Red troops "on the Kalinin front"—the same general northern front—had routed a German infantry regiment, a sappers' battalion, and an anti-tank defense corps in recapturing thirteen more villages.

Four more localities were retaken and 500 Germans killed on another sector of the long winter front, this communiqué said.

(The BBC quoted the Moscow radio as saying that 6,000 Germans had been slain in the southern Donets basin where "there still is violent fighting.")

The Russian air force chalked up a 20-to-6 advantage in aerial duels during Tuesday, the regular communiqué said.

Staraya Russa in peacetime is only a summer resort, but militarily it can serve as the springboard for many-phased operations.

Hard Blow to Germans
Its capture means not only the thousands of Germans now being pummeled on the Leningrad outposts; from this base operations are possible to cut off all the Nazi armies north of Lake Ilmen to the Estonian shores on the Gulf of Finland.

WOUNDED IN DUEL

Raul Damonte Taborda, 32, head of a committee investigating subversive activities in Argentina, was wounded in a saber duel. His fifty-one-year-old opponent, Col. Enrique Rottler, had a saber stab in his chest and two other wounds in his right arm. The colonel had demanded satisfaction for an election campaign remark.

American Pilots Sink Two Large Jap Transports

Also Shoot Down Three Big Airplanes and Damage Others

By WILLIAM F. FRYE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—American pilots and bombardiers fighting in the Netherlands Indies sank two large Japanese transports, shot down at least three enemy aircraft and damaged several more in three separate actions, the War department reported today.

There were no American losses. The transports were reported sunk by a flight of six army flying fortress bombers at Macassar, Japanese-held port on the southwestern tip of the island of Celebes.

Over Soerabaja, the Java north coast port and the last major naval base left to the United Nations in the Indies, a formation of American P-40 pursuit planes intercepted fifty-two Japanese bombers, protected by forty fighters.

In the ensuing battle, a communiqué said, one enemy bomber was shot down, and hits were scored on several other Japanese planes. Some of these may have been destroyed.

Win Earlier Action

In an earlier action over Java, the department reported, seven P-40s intercepted a formation of nine enemy bombers escorted by fourteen fighters. In a swift and vicious attack, the American pilots shot down one bomber and one fighter, damaged four other bombers, and two fighters, and forced the entire formation to turn back.

These encounters brought to at least fifty-one the total enemy planes destroyed in the air or on the ground by American pilots in The Netherlands Indies since January 1.

At the same time, the first clashes in several days between

End of 40-Hour Schedule Asked By Congressmen

Rep. Smith and Hoffman Declare Short Week Perils War Program

Sen. Byrd Charges Sec. Perkins with '9 Years of Incompetence'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Demands for suspension of the forty-hour week and removal of Secretary of Labor Perkins were made in Congress today as union-management disputes lead to two additional work stoppages.

At the same time an informed source reported that the administration might ask soon for a drastic "work or fight" measure and some senators discussed the feasibility of legislation to formulate a definite policy, which they held was now lacking, to govern settlement of disputes before the War Labor Board.

Rep. Smith (D-Va.) served notice, during House consideration of a new war powers bill, that he would offer an amendment tomorrow to suspend all the various eight-hour day and forty-hour weeks laws which he declared were "now handicapping the war effort." Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich.) endorsed the proposal, saying that "we here at home, like the armed forces, must devote our whole time" to winning the war.

Miss Perkins' removal was demanded by Senator Byrd (D-Va.) in a speech detailing what he termed "nine years of incompetence." He declared that "her influence in all labor disputes had not been exerted for the best interests of the country as a whole."

Byrd also urged that Congress "adopt a definite declaration of national labor policy," saying that because the administration had failed to effectuate one "time and again ruthless labor leaders have taken advantage of this failure."

"We are faced with deadly peril," he declared. "Not a single obstacle to our defense efforts can be tolerated. First things must come first. The war can be won only by making the war effort first and supreme in all our activities, both of the government and as individual citizens."

Australian Fliers Deal Heavy Blow To Invasion Army

Defenders Attack Enemy Bases with Successful Results

CANBERRA, AUSTRALIA, Feb. 25. (AP)—The Australian air arm has fallen with strong effect on Japanese air and naval forces marshaling within 400 to 500 miles above the continent for an expected full-scale invasion, the RAAF announced today.

While enemy bombers struck in turn at the outer island approaches, Australian bombers ranged from the part Portuguese-part Dutch island of Timor on the northwest to Rabaul on New Britain island on the northeast, setting off big fires and smashing enemy anti-aircraft batteries, military buildings and grounded enemy aircraft.

Off the port of Dili, capital of the Portuguese half of enemy-inhabited Timor, several Japanese transports were fiercely aflame. Here also a large Japanese naval force was sighted.

Enemy Reinforced

During the day it was reported that the enemy had been able to reinforce his troops on the Dutch half of Timor with parachutists landed near Koepang, the capital. The enemy's principal air action was against Port Moresby on the

Pritchett Given Death Sentence In Assault Case

Negro To Forfeit Life for Attack upon Salem, Md. Woman

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Feb. 25. (AP)—Wilbur Pritchett, 45-year-old negro, was sentenced today to be hanged for assault with attempt to rape a white woman in Salem last month. Sentence was imposed by Judge T. Sangston Insley after a jury deliberated for fifteen minutes and returned a verdict of guilty of the second of three counts. Pritchett was found innocent of rape and of assault and battery.

When Judge Insley, before pronouncing sentence, told Pritchett he could make any statement he wished, the negro simply replied: "I ask the mercy of the court."

Pritchett was placed in the custody of Sheriff James R. Thomas to be held in solitary confinement until removed to the Maryland penitentiary.

The negro went on trial this morning after two hours were spent in the selection of a jury.

Arrested Jan. 16
He was arrested Jan. 16, five minutes after he walked into the Dorchester county jail and asked for food and a place to sleep.

Murray and Green Protest Wage Freezing Plan of Leon Henderson

By CARSON F. LYMAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Leaders of the AFL and the CIO were understood to have protested to President Roosevelt today that Leon Henderson's recently expressed opposition to general wage increases had injured labor's case for higher wages before the War Labor Board.

The labor leaders, conferring with Mr. Roosevelt for the second time within a month, also were said to have recommended that the task of directing war-time mobilization of man-power be assigned to a single administrator in the labor department instead of to a board as proposed in the so-called McNutt plan.

Philip Murray and William Green, respective heads of the CIO and AFL, pronounced the conference "satisfactory," but declined to discuss details of their recommendations with reporters.

Disagree with Henderson

The recommendations were worked out at joint meetings of CIO and AFL officials and were said to have conflicted sharply on the wage question with Henderson's week-end pronouncement at Des Moines,

Senate Farm Bloc Gives Roosevelt Another Setback

Chamber Votes 50 to 23 To Keep Up Full Parity Price

By EDWIN R. HAAKINSON
WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—President Roosevelt lost another argument with the powerful Senate farm bloc today when the Senate voted fifty to twenty-three to prohibit sales of government stocks of farm products below a full parity price.

Disregarding a special presidential warning against "grasping for a few dollars in the name of farmers," the chamber first defeated a compromise proposal, 48 to 24, and then widened this two-to-one margin on the final vote that sent the measure to the House.

Veto Seems Certain
Despite their top-heavy Senate victory, farm bloc leaders conceded that their measure, intended to boost market prices for corn, wheat and cotton, faced a doubtful future. Even if the House approved the Senate measure, President Roosevelt's blunt letter to the Senate today indicated a probable veto.

The first test came on a proposal by Senator Brown (D-Mich.) to deduct the amount of government farm benefit payments from parity levels and let the resultant figure be the minimum at which the government could dispose of its surplus stocks. Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky pleaded with the Senate to accept this compromise.

Thomas and Brown Clash
Senator Thomas (D-Okla.), one of the farm bloc spokesmen, promptly accused Brown and Barkley of "leading a movement to drive farm prices down."

Brown earlier had charged that the farm bloc restrictions would add $1,000,000,000 to the present rising costs of living, but Thomas protested that this was asking farmers "for a billion dollar sacrifice."

With the compromise soundly defeated, farm bloc leaders yelled for a roll call on passage. Thirty-four democrats, fourteen republicans, one progressive and one independent shouted approval. The minority opposition included sixteen democrats and seven republicans.

Sees Danger to War Effort
Mr. Roosevelt, in a letter addressed to Vice President Wallace, said the legislation would do "irreparable damage to the war effort and to the farmers of the country."

"In this hour, when the very existence of our nation as a free people is at stake," he said, "we cannot afford to indulge in the promotion of selfish interests such as are involved in this legislation."

But farm bloc spokesmen reiterated their fears that Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and Price Administrator Leon Henderson would release the surplus stocks to beat

British Destroying Java Oil Refineries

Fires and Explosions near Rangoon Reported by Civilians and Japs Press Heavy Assaults

By DANIEL DE LUCE

MANDALAY, BURMA, Feb. 25. (AP)—Fires and explosions down-river from Rangoon and demolition of a vital oil refinery by the British forces — according to plan — was reported today by civilians arriving from the Burmese capital.

The British forces above Rangoon were reported maintaining their resistance against the Japanese west of the Sittang river after yet another withdrawal.

But certain English and Indian battalions had lost heavily in the prolonged fighting against superior numbers.

Offensive Under Way
In the north of Burma the long-expected Japanese offensive against the southern Shan states was believed getting underway from the bases of Chingmai and Chingrai in Thailand.

Some observers considered, however, that this would be a mopping-up operation, since the Rangoon delta is the heart of Burma and it, already, is at Japanese fingertips.

Accredited war correspondents with the British forces were ordered out of Rangoon last Friday and have since lacked official communications and military commentaries, but they find most officers newly established in central Burma also meagerly informed.

Correspondents and officers alike are asked by civilians enroute: "Getting away from the war, eh?"

Despite allied blows, authoritative Dutch sources warned tonight that this island stronghold now was completely encircled and declared that "considerable reinforcements" were urgently needed.

The Japanese occupation of Bali and Timor, a spokesman said, has completed the encirclement of Java by cutting off its communications with Australia.

One Favorable Aspect
"On the other hand," he added, "a favorable aspect of the situation is the fact that the Japanese forces are spread over a large area. If more planes are sent to Java, it will be possible to obtain local superiority and wipe out the Japanese invasion forces."

The Japanese for their part continued, as the Dutch high command said, no enemy bombs were dropped and no planes shot down, but there was tight-lipped official silence about virtually everything else that happened in a spectacular blackout which lasted from 2:25 a. m. (PWT) until 7:21 a. m.

Report Seeing "Object"
The screaming walls of sirens awakened most of the area's three million sleepers and within a few minutes they saw a slow-moving object, which many thought was a blimp, caught in an intensely bright

Americans Sink Enemy Shipping At Record Rate

Destruction of Japanese Vessels Is Faster Than Production

Fifty-Three Destroyed Since Dec. 10, Official Statement Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Such tremendous blows have been dealt to Japan's navy and merchant marine that if the rate of destruction continues for one year, her eventual doom will be sealed. United States naval officials indicated tonight.

This authoritative word was given to reporters after the navy disclosed officially that it had sent fifty-three Japanese naval and merchant vessels to the bottom since Dec. 10.

(It also said in passing that it has good reason to believe that three more enemy submarines have been sunk by United States naval action in the Atlantic theater, and four damaged. This brings the total of subs sunk or damaged by the navy in that ocean since the war began to twenty-one, inasmuch as Secretary Knox had declared on December 21 that fourteen had either been sent to the bottom or hit.)

Others Believed Sunk

Knox, in mentioning the figure of fifty-three Jap ships sunk since Dec. 10, added that the navy believed it had sunk seven more and damaged five. Nor was this the whole picture. If blows dealt to Japan's oceanic might by the United States army and its air forces are reckoned in, the score stands: Sunk—73; believed sunk—7; damaged—33.

Broken down into combatant ships and non-combatant craft this summary reads:

Combatant Vessels
Sunk—18; believed sunk—3; damaged—18.

Non-Combatant Vessels
Sunk—55; believed sunk—4; damaged—15.

In addition, terrific blows have been dealt by the Dutch. Although the figures on their deeds were not up-to-date enough tonight to include in the grand total, they have been sinking or damaging Japanese vessels at the approximate rate of one a day.

Looking at this picture as a whole, authorized navy spokesmen declared "they (the Japs) can't keep these losses up over a year with their building program." To win under these conditions, they added, Japan would have to "make this a quick and fast war."

Sees Defeat of Japan

What he meant was clear: that unless Japan could find some way to expand vastly her present strictly limited shipbuilding facilities or to lower the rate at which her shipping is being destroyed, the campaign of attrition will bring her to her knees.

Although Japan has twenty-three shipyards with sixty-nine berths for construction of large craft, her steel resources are limited and building facilities are believed to be far below what would be necessary to make up current losses.

For example, Japan's biggest year in merchant shipbuilding since the World war was 1937, when she turned out 180 vessels of 100 tons or more, a total gross tonnage of 451,121. The United States program calls for 8,000,000 tons of merchant ships in 1942.

War Production Board Prohibits Use of Rubber in Corsets, Girdles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—After more than a month of indecision, the War Production Board finally made up its mind today and prohibited the use of rubber in corsets and girdles.

Then, to balance bad news for the girls, the board threw in a general prohibition broad enough to cover men's garters and suspenders.

Arthur Newhall, chief of the WPB rubber branch, and R. R. Guthrie, head of the textile branch, issued a

Congressmen Respond To Economy Demand

IT IS GOOD to know that, according to a report just made by the Baltimore City Taxpayers' Association, five of Maryland's delegation of eight in Congress have come out in definite opposition to reckless non-essential federal spending.

Representative John A. Meyer, representing the Fourth district, is the fifth one listed in the fight.

Already a vigorous stand has been taken by Senator Millard E. Tydings, who delivered a telling blow against federal extravagance a week ago. Senator George L. Radcliffe voted for the Byrd congressional committee, which is seeking to cut nonessential federal expenditures by two billions. Representative David J. Ward, of the First district, and Representative William P. Cole, Jr., of the Second district, have advised taxpayer associations in their respective districts that they, too, will support the growing public demand for reduction of needless federal spending.

"I am happy to advise you," Representative Meyer wrote to the president of the taxpayers' association, William R. McClayton, "that I am opposed, and have been opposed, to the pension bill for congressmen and senators, and that I have never had any intention of taking advantage of same. I am committed to repeal of this measure and have taken the initiative along with several other members of the House of Representatives, to compel action upon its repeal."

"So far back as Tuesday, May 20, 1941, I strongly advocated non-defense economy. Ever since that time I have strenuously opposed unnecessary expenditures and I have been directly responsible for savings in government in connection with the construction of officers' family quarters in Curtis bay. I also took the floor of the House in opposition to the reckless expenditure of OGD funds and cast my vote in opposition to same."

The action of individual citizens on this general economy movement is a most hopeful thing, according to President McClayton. "In these dark days when democracy is fighting for its very existence and when grave sacrifices face every one of us," he stated, "it is encouraging to see citizens waking up from their long sleep and exercising their rights under our democracy. They are at last impressing their representatives in Congress with the imperative need for common sense in federal spending. And it is equally heartening to see our senators and congressmen, or at least a majority of those from Maryland, reacting favorably to the citizens' demand."

In all likelihood the movement will enlist the support of the entire Maryland delegation in Congress, or it is hoped so. Representative D'Alessandro's recent public utterances against OGD jobs has given hope for his eventual support.

Leadership That Counts

ONE REASON for the high morale and remarkable fighting effectiveness of Gen. MacArthur's forces is the splendid example of the officers. Soldiers fight best under officers who really lead them—and American officers in the Philippines are certainly doing that.

Lieut. Alexander Nininger won the Congressional Medal of Honor for an exploit on the field of battle in which he lost his life, but not until he had killed a number of Japanese with rifle and hand grenades. Gen. MacArthur himself is noted for his disregard of danger in war.

And there is the story of two brigadier generals who carried on under heavy fire while observing battle conditions at close range. Brig. Gen. Clinton A. Pierce lost the tip of one toe when he was hit by a sniper. Brig. Gen. James R. N. Weaver emptied his pistol at hidden Japanese after his aide, Capt. Ralph Keeler, was slightly wounded beside him.

There must be many other instances, not yet reported, in which officers in the Philippines have distinguished themselves in actual combat against the invaders. The high quality of the Philippine defense is a tribute to the leadership of the defenders.

Congressmen Slipped On Their History

AN ENHEARTENING THING about the congressional pension business is the fact that Congress is proving responsive, however tardily, to the public demand for its repeal. The same thing has been demonstrated in some other instances, but not as frequently as should be the case. But that the Congress does at times recognize its mistakes and sets about correcting them is something.

It may be wondered whether congressmen suffered a bad lapse in their knowledge of American history when they sneaked this unpopular measure through. If they had studied the unfortunate results of the Salary Grab measure of 1873, many of them would doubtless have voted differently when the current salary grab was enacted.

The Salary Grab of 1873 was started as a move to boost the salaries of the president and the supreme court justices, just as the present bill was started as a move to give pensions to certain civil service employees. But congressmen began thinking of themselves and before the bill was completed they had voted themselves a salary boost from $5,000 to $7,500 a year. It looked so good to them, indeed, that they even voted to make the pay retroactive.

But the consequences were politically fatal to many of them. There was an uproar of public protest, the issue went into the subsequent election and the public temper was such that many congressmen didn't dare to accept the extra pay. Candidates were dubbed "old Salary Grab Smith, old Salary Grab Jones" and so on. The newly-elected Congress repealed the measure for the most part, leaving only the increases for the president and the supreme court justices.

One thing demonstrated in this case is that Americans are pretty much the same sort of people they were sixty-nine years ago. That, too, is something.

A Score That Totals Even

IN VOTING for a congressional inquiry into the fire that wrecked the former French liner Normandie, the Senate and House presumably acted on their own initiative, but they also reflected the suspicions of some 130,000,000 private citizens.

So far there has been no satisfactory explanation of that tragedy—for tragedy it is when 84,000 tons of shipping that cost $60,000,000 is destroyed at one stroke. Next to Pearl Harbor, it is the greatest single loss suffered by the armed forces of the United States in this conflict.

Whether the fire that raked the Normandie was set by a saboteur or whether its origin was accidental, it seems plain that carelessness was at the bottom of it. If the former, lack of vigilance; if the latter, lack of fire precautions. And, many persons ask, why was such a prize left in its regular slip instead of being taken to a Navy base where it could be guarded?

In a recent cartoon, Rollin Kirby depicts Uncle Sam and John Bull snoozing on a love seat. Above is a placard bearing the legend: Pearl Harbor, Singapore, Normandie, Gneisenau and Schornhorst. The title is "Caught Napping," and it is worth noting that the score totals up even. When it comes to criticizing each other, Uncle Sam and John Bull are both vulnerable.

A Button Shortage Is Now on the List

THE CALL of "Button, button, who's got the button?" may arouse in some persons a nostalgic longing for childhood days and childhood games, but to many a housewife in Canada and probably in this country eventually, it will mean digging up that almost forgotten relic of bygone days—the button basket.

For now it seems that there will be something of a shortage of buttons. It will be difficult to obtain all those weird creations of fantastic colors. Today many buttons are made of bakelite, and to make bakelite requires formaldehyde and resin, both of which are needed in war industries. So, the choice to be made between buttons and bombs naturally leaves only one alternative—bombs.

There was a time, and not too far past to remember, when milady could have as many as 600 color tones in buttons. Now she'll be counting herself very fortunate to get fifteen. She can still get buttons made of bone, glass and wood, and there are even some made of pottery (of course, no mother-of-pearl, since that bears the Japanese brand), but she'll have to cut down on bakelite.

Here is where our Mennonite friends have the laugh on the rest of us!

One of MacArthur's officers has personally accounted for 116 Japs. Any Jap who wants to commit hara-kari knows where he can have it done for him.

Germany now leads the world in consumption of champagne. It may be just a coincidence that Nazi Foreign Minister Ribbentrop is in that business.

Are You Lost?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I don't mean, are you lost on the mountain side, wandering around in circles, desperately shouting for help, thirsting and starving and giving up hope? I mean, are you lost in the midst of human beings, as helplessly lost as you could be anywhere on this earth?

Can one be lost when human beings are all around? Of course. You can be lost beyond hope in the heart of a crowd if you BELIEVE you are lost. . . . You can be lonely, you can pity yourself, you can be most miserably unhappy—if you wish to be. And if you have that kind of disposition you can be lost forever.

Once in the heart of the woods the penniless philosopher Thoreau became separated from his party and was not seen for hours. When he serenely rejoined his friends and was asked if he had been lost, he replied: "No, I was on this earth and could not be lost."

Thoreau was not lost because he was at home among trees, lying on mosses, watching wild animals. He might have felt lost in a city, but never in the woods.

I was lost once and was quite distressed over it. But I saw a slice of golden moon caught in the limbs of a bare, crooked tree, and I found an old man in a shanty who gave me all the bread and milk I could eat and drink—and said I might use his bed. I came away with home than had been mine before.

So I suppose that if you look around you whenever you feel lost, you will find that you are not lost at all or that it makes no difference if you are. You are still on this earth and cannot be lost, or there are many things right at hand, worthwhile and precious, for you to use and enjoy.

Others may be lost, but YOU can never be.

Red Hot Letters Protest Charges Of Public Apathy

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—It isn't easy to tell, from fan-mail, whether a particular column is good, bad or junk.

Yet there is one general rule that sometimes helps a little. If it draws a lot of mail and it is mostly hopping mad or grudgingly favorable, you must have hit something out there.

Recently I suggested in a column that even after Pearl Harbor, the people were not sufficiently waked up about this way—"don't give a tinker's damn" were the words used.

Boy, did that one bounce back. It was like prodding a hornet's nest with a three-foot pointer.

If there had been a little more time, I might have saved some eminent statesmen, who later used similar expressions in speeches, a good deal of embarrassment.

All Red-Hot

Without one single exception, these letters were red-hot. Aren't the people submitting to confiscatory taxes without a murmur? Who kicks about restrictions on almost everything used in daily living?

Where has a word been heard against drafting our men-folk and breaking up their lives? Who has gone to the wailing wall because his business and his capital are being ruined? What has been asked that has not been freely given? Don't we give a tinker's damn about all that?

Who prepared our minds for any such thing as this? We were that the billions we were asked for was to keep us out of war. We were told as late as January 1941, that we would not need to send troops abroad. Then the whole tune changed without warning. Nobody took the trouble to explain anything to us. Each chapter in our book of bad news was handed to us as a new and separate book with the morning paper.

We were not even told the state of our preparedness in understandable figures. We were convinced that our navy was unbeatable and our West Coast secure.

Production Bungled

Then came Pearl Harbor and the details of that are not even yet clear. The management of our war production was so badly bungled that nobody even undertakes to defend it.

Great ships like the Normandie are rarely lost in the harbor of New York. But there lies what was the biggest ship afloat and we don't know why.

We want to help more directly in defense and plead for leadership—and we get the O. C. D. We make sacrifices and think that includes ups all and learn that congressmen want pensions and one great faction of organized labor demands a dollar-a-day increase and a provision to tie their wages to any rise in the cost of living and thus to insure themselves against inflation while wishing it on the rest of us.

These are actual excerpts paraphrased only to fit them together. One letter ended:

"So the people don't give a tinker's damn, hey? Well, suppose you show us how to give a damn instead of calling names."

According to the New York Times, a young fellow—a simple citizen of Mount Gilead, O.—got the idea of organizing the trade-area of his home town, mostly farmers, but including some factory workers, under the slogan, "production now." They are making an inventory of all tractors, power farm machinery and automobiles in the sixteen townships.

Pooling Does It

By pooling the heavy-duty equipment they can greatly increase the output and reduce the man-hours required for their farm production. The automobile equipment of the area is likewise to be directed in such a way as to reduce to a minimum the mileage of each car throughout the year and serve the needs of such family with the fewest.

Social Events and Items of Interest for the Women

Isaac Hirsch Is Speaker At B'er Chayim Party

Discusses "War and What It Means to Women in General"

War and what it means to women in general and the sacrifices they must make were discussed by Isaac Hirsch, president of the congregation, at the sixty-sixth birthday celebration of the B'er Chayim Temple Sisterhood, yesterday afternoon at the All Ghn Shrine Country Club.

Mr. Hirsch said that pleasure and convenience as usual must be modified and the routine of life changed as necessary. "Defense is half defeat," he declared and pointed out how Washington and Lincoln were on the defensive for several years yet won the wars.

Mrs. Harry Beneman was toastmaster and Mrs. Allan T. Hirsch, president of the sisterhood, extended greetings to the group. The community singers included several numbers for which Mrs. Irving Rosenbaum composed the words. Mrs. Aaron H. Lefkowitz was at the piano for the singing and was vocalist for the playlet, "Baby Snooks Comes to Temple," which was presented under the direction of Mrs. Samuel Jacobson. Mrs. David Kauffman portrayed Baby Snooks and Mrs. Louis Lutz took the part of the father, other characters were played by Mrs. Herman Richmond, Mrs. Leon Tashoff and Mrs. Leo Schor. Jack Platt was guest vocalist.

Following the luncheon "peanut sisters" were divided and gifts, in most instances defense stamps, were exchanged, and sisters for the ensuing year were drawn.

Approximately sixty guests attended the celebration which was planned by Mrs. George Kline, Mrs. Nat Guggenheimer and Mrs. Ben Kamens, the committee on arrangements.

Gephart P-TA Will Meet This Evening

The Gephart Parent-Teacher Association will meet at 7:30 o'clock this evening at the school. Following the regular business meeting, W. Earl Brooks, chief air-raid warden for the county, will address the group.

The musical program will include musical recitations by Mrs. Charles R. McDuffie and her daughter, W. E. Landefeld is chairman in charge of arrangements.

The navy operates about thirty large hospitals, two hospital ships, and every navy ship has a "sick bay."

Stuft, of Raiphaon, Pa. The ceremony was performed February 14, in the Grantsville Lutheran church with the Rev. Louis B. Foltz, of Stoyestown, Pa., officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Horner were the attendants.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 42

Deduction for Traveling Expenses

To obtain a deduction for traveling expenses, which form an important item in the returns of many taxpayers, certain regulations must be observed. The taxpayer is required to attach to a statement showing the nature of business in which engaged, number of days away from home during the taxable year on account of business, total amount of expense incidental to meals and lodging, and total amount of "other expenses" incident to travel and claimed as a deduction. Among the "other expenses" are tips, provided they are reasonable in amount.

Traveling expenses are deductible only when the trip is on business. They are limited to such expenses as are reasonable and necessary in the conduct of the business and directly attributable to it.

Traveling expenses incurred in connection with a journey to another city to accept or seek employment are not deductible. Suburbanites who commute daily from their homes to their places of business are not permitted to deduct the cost of transportation, it being a personal expense.

Claims for deduction for traveling expenses must be substantiated when required by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, showing in detail the amount and nature of the expense incurred.

Continual Party Often Expected By Young Couples

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"I never miss your column and enjoyed 'Contented Wife's' letter very much," writes "All Out for a Happy Home." "Here is the story of another happy marriage. 'Contented Wife' has nothing on me, although our lives are very different."

"We have five children and I care for all of them myself. My work might seem very hard to some, but with a little forethought and sensible management I have time left over to do the things I enjoy," the letter states.

"My husband works at night and sleeps until noon. He is with us until six-thirty in the evening, and has one night a week at home. We are both so busy we never have a dull moment. Yes, as you suggested in your answer, to 'Contented Wife's' letter, hobbies are very important. Both of us have several. My husband plays the guitar, does some art work, reads and, in summer, cares for a vegetable garden and our lawn. Both of us are radio addicts."

Ideas Are Exchanged
"My favorite 'nerve resters,' as I call them, are sewing, embroidering, making patchwork quilts and reading. Our friends are not invited to any midnight parties, but we get together for delightful evenings and exchange ideas and plans," she writes.

"A wife must take time from everything, even cherished hobbies which, if carried too far, may separate a couple. She must give her husband real companionship, chat about the things he likes, make him feel important, as the head of the family. Let him know what you expect of him and he'll seldom disappoint you."

"It's my theory that a woman can make anything she likes out of her husband if she only goes about it in the right way. He will live up to the standards his wife sets—and that takes care of 'other women's lipstick.'"

"If my opinion is worth anything I think the greatest trouble with modern marriage is that too many couples merely live in a house rather than make it a home. Besides, many girls think they can run home if things go wrong. When I married and left home I made up my mind never to return. My husband and I eloped, both of us aged 18, and we're still eloping along happily, at 28."

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9742

Home frocks CAN be charming even in larger sizes! Just try a special Marian Martin design like Pattern 9742, with demure scallops on the bodice that buttons so cleverly over the front skirt panel! The short sleeves have a curved edge—and how gaily ric-rac accents the effect! You'll notice that the back of the dress is simply cut for quick stitching-up (there are only four main pattern parts altogether). An all-round belt and long sleeves are optional. Do try this slenderizing mode in an inexpensive daisy print. Follow the step-by-step Sew Chart for success, and you'll find your home-frocks can flatter your figure and look vivacious too!

Pattern 9742 may be ordered only in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 35 inch fabric and 2½ yards ric-rac.

Send fifteen cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Service Questions And Answers

Beatrice Fairfax will be glad to answer all questions from the public, service-men, their friends and families about problems of circumstance or procedure that arise because of military service. When the occasion warrants, Miss Fairfax will make all efforts to get a definite answer from sources of high authority.

War Secretary Plays Cupid

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
As a student aviator in the Marine Corps, my marriage to the one and only girl was postponed. There is a good deal of talk among engaged men that this order may be rescinded. As you have offered, through the press liaison bureau, in Washington to get direct answers to such questions, would you be kind enough to inquire if men in the Naval and Marine Corps Reserves may marry after completing their flight training?
ONE OF THEM.

While I was waiting to get a direct answer to your question, Secretary Knox assumed the role of Cupid and announced that the men commissioned as Ensigns or Second Lieutenants, who formerly were required to remain unmarried two years after they receive their commissions, may now marry immediately after their flight training.

The Navy has also ruled that officers who have been discharged in the past because of the marriage ban could apply for reappointment.

Sorry, Says Marine

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
Do you think if a guy's letter shows how much he cares for a girl, it makes any difference if he falls down on his spelling, and things like that?
I left school at an early age and have supported myself since I was fourteen years old. My sister, who's nicely educated, said my handwriting looks like hen tracks. I want to write to my girl. Would it be risky? Please straighten this letter out before you print it.
JACK.

In a series of lightning moves against potential saboteurs, the government made a most extensive roundup of Japanese aliens in California, seizing possession of Fish Harbor and the surrounding territory in Terminal Island in Los Angeles under a condemnation writ. Deputy William Adolph is shown searching M. Hirota, one of the seized aliens.

tells me he is safe.
Shall I write to my soldier first or wait until he writes to me?
SOLDIER'S SWEETHEART.

Why stand on ceremony about who writes first? There's plenty to do when a soldier is taking his training, and it's not always the easiest thing to settle down to letter-writing after drilling and all the other work. Even if he owes you a letter this young man is probably wondering why you don't write to him.

Orphan in Diamonds

by LORENA CARLETON

SYNOPSIS
ANETTE WINSLOW, 17, beautiful, and aspiring to fame on the stage, is introduced to the world of show business by LAURENCE PEYTON, top-ranking actor, and to AUGUST DRAKE, Peyton's leading lady, by DR. WALTER KIRKWOOD, struggling young M. D.

CHAPTER FOUR
GLOWING descriptive folders exploiting the student club where Anette lived failed to mention that "telephone service" was a buzzing signal which meant a long walk through a hallway to an offensive public extension. Small town dormitory life was the Four Arts club, in spite of a parlor maid and a baby grand piano.

Dressed in a crimson velvet housecoat and matching cat-heeled mules, Anette raced to the third-floor flat instrument, despising the open doors of the curious and the still more daring girls who found excuses to loiter nearby. As she lifted the receiver with her left hand, she took hold tightly of the wire with her right to keep it from shaking.

"Hello?" she managed breathlessly.
"Hello, there! This is Jimmy Lyndon. How about lunch?"
Her heart fell right back into place. Or no! It fell much lower. Not even to entice eavesdroppers could she put animation into her voice. "I'm sorry," she refused with flat indifference, "but I have a luncheon engagement."

"Dinner then?"
For the girl's right hand, completely steady now, released the twisted telephone cord. "I think I'll be busy for dinner, too." With coffee and toasted sandwiches, very likely, she thought and smiled.

"Then you name it?" As she ventured a refusal, he broke in with a friendly chuckle. "Now look here, I have to go to New York the last of the week and from there to Bermuda. I'll be gone fully a month and I want to see you before I leave Chicago. So, again I say, you name it." Nevertheless, before she could answer he went on. "I'm sorry about lunch. I thought we might horn in on Lois. She is entertaining August Drake and your friend Peyton."

For an instant Anette wondered how she possibly could speak through the dryness in her mouth. And then, though cottony and completely lifeless, the words came out in a rush. "My date isn't terribly important. I'll cancel it and go with you. But I dare not be late for my lesson again today. I must be there at 3 o'clock."

"I'll see that you are. Be ready at 12:30. Lunch is at one." Soon after James Lyndon had rung off, his sister's crisp little mechanical invitation came over the wire. And then another call, the customer-reporting her calico frock ready for the Wednesday performance. In response to both messages, Anette dashed through the hallway with the same hopeful eagerness she had felt for the first one, only to experience the same disappointment.

Sharply she rebuked herself. Why had she been so trustingly certain Laurence Peyton would telephone her for lunch? Why so trustingly certain he would telephone her at all? He wasn't duty-bound simply because they had enjoyed a wonderful afternoon the previous day. But, oh, she pleaded

Married Soldier Usually Worries, Lowering Morale

Hundreds of Officers and Draftees Have Been Taking Wives

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

A great many young women are marrying men in uniform. What are the risks for these girls?

The War, Navy and Air Departments assume it is better for the efficiency of the armed forces for all men in it to be single. They discourage marriage among commissioned officers during war-time and forbid it among enlisted men. Administration of selective service tends to defer the services of men who have been married for some years, especially of fathers.

This program is in consideration for the dependents. Moreover, many leaders in our armed forces say that married men don't, as a rule, go as good soldiers as single men. Separation from their loved ones and constant concern about sufficient money for their care and protection tend to weaken morale in many married soldiers.

DOCTORS WARN CONSTIPATED FOLKS ABOUT LAZY LIVER

IT IS SAID constipation causes many human ailments—headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness being but a few. BUT DON'T WORRY—

For years a noted Ohio Doctor, Dr. F. M. Edwards, successfully treated scores of patients for constipation with his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now sold by drug stores everywhere. inwardly, with a moan that actually was silent, yet roared in her ears, please let the telephone ring and please let it be Larry.
Two hours later she sat eating avocado and orange salad and salty little wafers, while others at the table did the talking. Not that she was enjoying her lunch. She was too miserable. She ached with misery. I feel as if I'd swallowed a porcupine, she thought to herself. Slowly she lifted topaz eyes toward Larry, who sat across the table from her, between his hostess and August Drake. He seemed entirely unperturbed by the young girl's presence, still as unaffected as he had been when he first saw her among the guests.

As she watched, some remark of Lois' brought a wide smile to his handsome face, and his eyes sparkled. Encouraged, the debutante put up a slim hand and gave him a quick, childish pat on the cheek.

Lyndon criticized softly. "I don't see why my sister doesn't let up on Peyton. She ran him ragged in New York, then trailed him to Chicago. I suppose she'll stay here until the show closes." He laughed in an embarrassed manner. "And she gets absolutely nowhere. She should realize she can't best August Drake."

Anette did not answer. But she looked at Lois Lyndon, bare-headed, with pale blond hair nestling above the pink collar of her navy blue velvet suit, and was jealous. Her eyes shifted to August, dynamic and magnetic in rust wool, a tiny green hat perched atop red curls, and though she knew the cascading veils were to soften a drooping jaw-line and a too-pointed chin, she was jealous of August also.

In fact, the violence of her jealousy frightened her and made her ashamed. No good, all that stern advice from her grandmother, all those embroidered mottoes that had all but covered bedroom walls. Be maidenly. Be sweet-tempered. Softly insulting, such warnings, when what she wanted to do was scream and throw the dishes. Lyndon was talking again. "Lois is like a thrilled kid entertaining these actors and having everyone stare. Of course she would much prefer a tete-a-tete luncheon with Peyton, but that is a little hard to manage. August does have a way about her, you know. And what a way!"

The girl at his side nodded and smiled faintly. "I think I know what you mean."

"Of course I respect the professional admiration between August and Peyton, but my sister will make a fool of herself over a conceited actor—oh, say now!" he exclaimed, as Anette's features changed from pure white to pink, "forgive me if I've tramped on your toes." His clear blue eyes were filled with concern. "I thought you and our matinee idol were just casual friends."

"We are just casual friends," came her clipped agreement, as her eyes returned to James Lyndon's, after a purely impersonal encounter with Larry's. Why, they were strangers. Anette's heart shivered and as quickly began to soar until it felt like a glistening plane in brilliant summer sunshine.

Still wearing that impersonal disinterested mask, Larry was talking to his hostess. "Lois, this is a mighty fine lunch. I'll remember it when I'm having my rabbit sandwich before the show."

"Rabbit sandwich?" the blond girl echoed.

Rapidly Laurence Peyton explained his meager diet. "It's a small amount of gwar risk insurance as enlisted men, evade the restrictions of the armed forces, and marry. Hundreds and hundreds of them have been taking wives.

The big risk in the widest sense is not with the man-in-uniform who marries but rather with the girl who marries him; and the consequent hardships might fall not only on her but her parents and an unborn child. It seems to me it is hardly in the spirit of self-sacrifice which his service in the armed forces requires that he should insist on a girl's marrying him now.

Factors Involved
Whether the girl should choose to marry, if the man is willing, would seem to depend on a number of factors such as how long they have gone together and really loved each other, how sure she is that he is the man for her, how grown up she is emotionally, how self-reliant, and how secure economically she would be should he not return from the war. Though the economic perils should be less to commissioned officers who marry while in the service or on entering it, the foregoing factors would be similar.

About the least responsibility a married service man should shoulder is to take out the largest possible amount of gwar risk insurance for his wife's protection. The savings he must affect each month to pay for this will be one way of expressing his love and feeling of obligation. What's more, such self-denials will have character values for most who choose to make them.

One thing is certain, marriage after a few months acquaintance, hazardous for any couple, is especially to be condemned for actual or about-to-be-service men. Under the excitement of war time, and the pull of romance with men in uniform, meet-to-day-and-marry-tomorrow, with all the tragic consequences, is painfully prevalent.

Many girls will defy all warnings to the contrary. Yet skillful parents who have won and maintained their daughter's or son's confidence and esteem can do much at disuasion. So also can teachers and other adults who have earned the esteem of young people.

daily event. Same food, same place, same hour, same girl."
Lois leaned back of him to stare at August Drake. "Not me!" August denied with graceful disdain, although her heavily tinted face was puzzled.
Larry deftly switched the conversation as he supplied meaningfully. "She is busy with other things at that time of day."

His insinuation forced visions of herself at that hour, masked and chin-strapped, into the red-haired woman's mind. Instinctively she lowered her face into the veils about her throat, and breathed thanks that a newspaper photographer, armed with camera, suddenly provided a rescue from her taunting leading man.

Pleasure brightened Lois' face as she realized the paper would carry proof of her chummy friendship with the stars of "Orchids Can Choose You." She leaned even closer to Larry. He also was pleased August put on the careful propriety that wouldn't nip wrinkles into the corners of her eyes. No one would dream she had coerced their press agent. "Have him there before I've eaten my face completely out of shape," she had instructed him. "Lunch with the Lyndons should land us on the society page instead of the theatrical."

On Wednesday at the matinee performance, Anette stood near a spiral staircase in backstage gloom and knew she had been none too good in her first scene. Verrazano was standing beside her, instructing her. He moved away and immediately returned. Or so she thought. Instead, it was Laurence Peyton who, without a word of greeting, opened his hand beneath her starry gaze.

"Look!" In the dim light she saw three locks of hair. Red, blond, black. August's, Lois', her own. Larry bragged idly, "I'm making a collection. All I need now is a gray and white."

For what seemed a tormented century Anette just stared. It seemed entirely the three curls. The lock-of-hair idea had been ridiculous all along. It was the long wait in the sandwich place that afternoon when he hadn't even arrived. It was his telephone call the ensuing day, friendly and explanatory, but scarcely apologetic. It was the two frightful days after that when he hadn't telephoned at all. It was the ridiculous mourning over the newspaper picture because he looked so completely happy with his partner and Lois Lyndon, and because she herself looked so plain beside the sober-faced James Lyndon. It was all those things, suddenly encircled by three locks of hair, and made more detestable because he now seemed so provokingly unrepentant of wrongdoing.

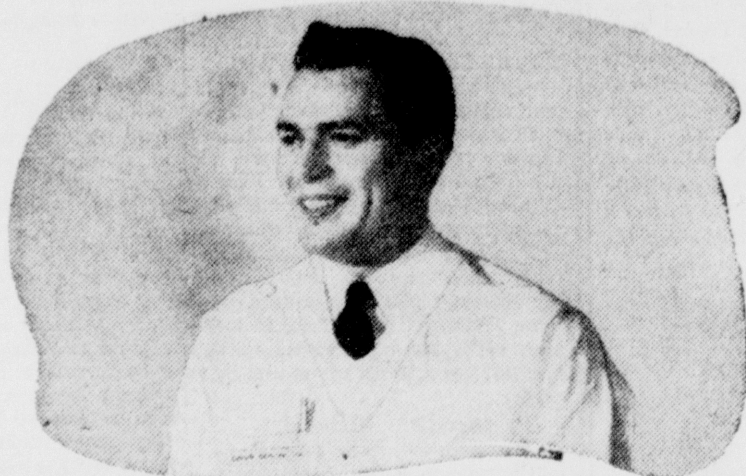

She dragged her gaze from Larry's palm and inquired in strangled, childish sarcasm, "Are you stuffing a sofa?" Her eyeballs felt like marble slabs. Actually they were soft beneath uncontrollable tears.

She realized with sick helplessness. "I'm crying—my makeup—I must not cry!" And while she stood there, beneath Larry's strange smile, her teeth clamped, and spine rigid, fighting her emotion, trying to ignore the tears that persistently rolled down her cheeks, a second thought raced to her. "But I must cry. I'm supposed to cry. This is it!"

She walked onto the stage, shoulders bent beneath the burden of her heartbroken sobs.

Locally-Applied Drugs May Abolish Pain, Kill Germs, Promote Healing

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
In the articles this week we have been discussing the scientific foundation for the action of drugs after they have been absorbed in the body. They act either on the nervous system or by changing blood flow.

There is another great class of drugs which act locally at the site of the spot of application. Of course most skin remedies act this way, but we will discuss those next week. When Dr. Carl Koller, lately practicing in New York, was assistant in the eye clinic in Vienna in 1884, he discovered that cocaine dropped in the eye would entirely abolish pain on the surface, so that operations could be performed as well as if a general anesthetic were used.

The introduction of local anesthesia was a great step forward in medical practice. We have since then manufactured many better drugs than cocaine for such purposes.

Locally Applied Drugs

We also have drugs which are antiseptic or germicidal when applied locally. They kill germs or inhibit germ growth within certain limits. Other locally applied drugs promote healing.

Two steps to amazing new pep... vitality... better looks!

A truly marvelous change can be brought about by overcoming miserable digestive complaints, under-weight, sluggishness, loss of appetite—all by two important steps—

1. Restore vital digestive juices to the stomach. 2. Energize your body with rich, red blood!

If you are one of those unfortunate ones who have looked under a doctor's hand, failed to eat the proper foods, have been vexed by constipation, or have suffered with indigestion, the flu, or other illness, you have a weak, organic, or malnourished body. Your red blood cells have become reduced in vitality and number. Your stomach digestion refuses to work properly. When here is what should help you! S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build blood strength, when deficient, to relieve and stimulate those "machinery" juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important steps enable you to enjoy the food you eat... to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality... pep... become animated... more attractive!

Of especial interest just at this season is the use of drugs which are applied locally to the nose and throat for relief of colds, sore throats and rhinitis.

For a gargle or nose douche for a normal nose, the safest thing is not salt water. Nearly anything else is likely to depress the antiseptic powers of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. Sodium perborate is practically harmless and has been used successfully for generations in mild infections and clogged up noses. It dissolves in water with a slight effervescence and should be used at once. It dissolves mucous and gives off oxygen which helps to inhibit germ growth. The simpler form of sodium borate solution is famous as Dobell's solution.

The best of gargles can be obtained inexpensively at the drug store if instead of asking for trade names you can call for liquor antiseptics which contain boric acid, thymol, eucalyptus and other aromatic oils.

A solution of two percent boric acid is a household standby for washing the eyes after a tiring day of exposure.

Questions and Answers
P. G.—"Please explain to me how a metabolism test is made and what a test of this nature would determine."

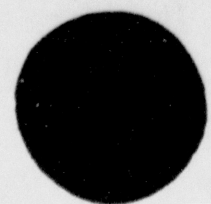

Answer: A metabolism test measures the amount of oxygen an individual consumes per minute. It is performed by a very simple apparatus in which all the air breathed in and out is measured over a period of fifteen minutes to half an hour. The most useful information obtained in this way concerns the activity of the thyroid gland, i.e., whether there is an active goiter or not.

A Little Plain and Fancy Boasting

The value of a product is not in the label itself but in its significance. There is invisible quality in every label bearing the name of this pharmacy. Frequently your doctor prescribes some U. S. P. (United States Pharmacopoeia) or N. F. (National Formulary) drug with no manufacturer specified. On all such occasions, we use the very best standard brand. When you bring your prescriptions to us you are assured of fresh, pure ingredients of the highest quality, and competent, accurate compounding. We are prescription specialists.

Stella tossed her school books on the living room table and flopped back in a couch. For a long time she was nervously biting her nails and tapped her foot against the floor and gazed thoughtfully at snow twisting outside the window. "Care for a glass of milk, honey?" her mother asked.

Ticked Pink!!

And what? Because he found there was a way to relieve that aggravating gas, headache, flatulence, coated tongue and bad breath, from which he had suffered, due to spells of constipation. He tried ADLERKA—why don't you? It is an effective blend of 5 carminatives and 3 laxatives for DOUBLE action. ADLERKA quickly relieves gas, and gentle bowel action follows surprisingly fast. "Not right now, mom." She got up and walked into the bathroom and began combing her long hair. She was tall and thin, not more than 17 but passed for 20. The heavy knit sweater she wore made

"Are you feeling all right, honey?" her mother asked. "I'm feeling all right, mom." "You look like you have something on your mind."

"There's nothing on my mind."

The mother did not take her eyes off her daughter. Stella sat down in the same couch in the living room and watched the snow piling against the window. "Are you sure you're not keeping anything from me, baby?" her mother asked. "I'm not keeping anything from you, mom. Can't you leave me alone?" "Is that a way to talk to your mother?" "I'm sorry, mom." She sat down beside Stella and

"What's wrong with that?" her mother laughed.

"They were drinking soda at Walgreens. If you saw how close their faces were you'd know what I mean," she muttered.

"Well for the love of—that's his privilege, honey. I think you're jealous."

"I'm not jealous. It's the principle of the thing," Stella said, defensively.

"I never heard my daughter talk like this before. What's come over you?"

Stella turned her head and leveled her eyes back on the window again.

"You're sure acting like it's tragic," her mother laughed. "It's not tragic. It's rotten," Stella said. "I didn't think Petey was two-faced. I'm glad I found out. I think all men are two-faced. I hate 'em all."

"That's what I used to say, and here I am, married to your father," her mother chortled. She walked back into the kitchen shaking her head. She stirred something in a pot on the stove and reappeared again.

"Isn't Petey coming over tonight to take you ice-skating?" she asked, holding back a smile.

"Well, I'll make him wish he didn't come," Stella replied, sarcastically.

"Now don't be unreasonable, honey."

"I'll give him a piece of my mind and shoo him right out again." Stella's father came in stamping the snow off his shoes. He kissed his wife and daughter and slipped out of his dripping overcoat. He hung it above the bathtub and washed his hands and face. He kicked off his shoes and got into his slippers and sat down at the table. "Look's like Chicago'll be snowed-in tonight," he said.

"We didn't get any for Christmas, so we're getting it now," his wife answered.

They ate in silence. Stella picked at her food thoughtfully. Her mother watched her a long time.

"We have a big girl now, Henry," she finally said to her husband.

Henry lifted his eyes from the newspaper and looked at his wife. "Huh?" he said.

"I said I think our daughter's in love."

Stella's face colored. "You're making fun of me, mom," she said, angrily. She got up from the table and walked into the living room and flopped back in the couch.

"Now, Aggie, I'm reading the paper. If she's in love, she's in love. Everybody's in love," Henry said.

Stella's mother sat down beside her and patted her gently on the arm.

"I didn't mean nothing by what I said, Honey," she said tenderly. Stella didn't answer.

"When he comes I'll help you give him a piece of your mind," she added, jestingly, and walked away.

slung over his back. He was Stella's age, tall, muscular. "Hi-yo, folks. Where's the princess?" he said. "In the living room, Petey," Stella's mother smiled. She followed him into the living room. "Here's your Romeo, Honey." "Now, mom, please," Stella begged.

"What goes on?" Petey asked. "You'll soon find out, when you get a piece of her mind," her mother laughed.

Skates slung over their backs, Petey and Stella hunched toward the park.

"What goes on? What was your mother anglin' at?" Petey asked again.

Stella tightened her hold on his waist and looked up at him, admiringly.

"Don't mind her, Petey. She just likes to kid you," Stella said.

Orange and Black To Send Delegates To Press Caucus

Students Will Represent Central High in New York

John Hohing Will Discuss "Running the Paper" at the Convention

LONA CONING, Feb. 25.—Delegates to the eighteenth annual convention of the Columbia scholastic press association to be held in New York city, March 12, 13 and 14, have been announced today at Central high school.

The five members of the staff of Orange and Black who will make the trip include John Hohing, editor of the paper who will appear at a feature program while at the convention and discuss, "Running the Paper."

Other delegates are Dorethea Reed, managing editor; Betty Duden, associate editor; Lois Anderson, editor and Norma Gordon, business manager.

Arthur F. Smith, adviser and principal will accompany the delegates. He will discuss "Training the Staff."

Mr. Smith will mark his seventh year as a speaker at one of the national conventions in New York. He also has appeared on other scholastic press convention platforms throughout the country.

The local paper has been awarded a gold medal rating at this convention for the last two years. On many occasions "All Columbian" has been awarded this award. It is made on the basis of things as, "feature" stories, editorials and typographical errors.

Delegates will leave Wednesday, March 11, by train for New York and will stay at Hotel McManis.

While in New York they will attend convention meetings starting at 1:30 p. m. March 12, and will return Saturday, March 14, after luncheon in Hotel Commodore.

This is the tenth year that the local paper has sent delegates.

The Lonaconing 4-H club held its monthly meeting, last night, in the community building, Jackson street.

The Lonaconing Homemakers club will meet tomorrow (Thursday) evening at 7 o'clock, at which time Miss Maude Bean will give a demonstration.

A meeting of the staff corps of the Civilian defense group will meet at Central high school, at 8:30 p. m. Thursday, instead of the Engine company of the Goodwill Fire company, as previously scheduled.

Two National defense teams have been formed in Central high school. The room will have the teams, one from the Orange and the other from the Black. The teams will vie for the honor of winning the greatest number of defense stamps and bonds. About three hundred students are involved.

Dr. Joseph Friedman, who is now member of the Medical Corps at Ft. George G. Meade, has closed his office here.

Raymond Cameron, Baltimore, has been a visitor here for the last several days, returned yesterday.

Red Cross Drive In Frostburg Goes over $2,500

Final Report Will Not Be Made for Several Days, Stewart Says

FROSTBURG, Feb. 25.—A. Charles Stewart, finance chairman of Frostburg's Red Cross war fund drive stated today a final report of the collections made here by the women of the community who made a house-to-house canvass last week and the first of this week would not be available for several days. He revealed that total collections to date were over $2,500 and said that amount pledged from various schools, civic institutions and fraternal groups would bring the amount up to about $3,000.

Frostburg's goal was set at approximately $2,100 at the Red Cross dinner held here last week, but contributions came in so generously that the campaign's success was assured early in the week, when the total collections and donation amounted to $2,500.

A complete report will be submitted by Mrs. Walter Jeffries, treasurer, when the committee is satisfied that all the larger contributions have been received.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard O. Davies, Narrows, Va., former residents of Frostburg, entertained at their home, Monday evening in honor of Melvin Hynes, a former resident of LaVale, who is soon to leave the employ of the Celanese Corporation at Narrows to join the United States Navy.

The following former members of the staff of the Celanese Corporation of America at Amelle plant were present: Messrs. William Melvey MacCleary, Elmer Johnson, Raymond Hebb, Larry Holt, Joseph Donahoe, V. C. Comp-ton, F. J. Schiessler, George Clark, George Kaibach, R. L. Frederickson, Walter Simpson, Robert Berg, Earl Poling, H. C. Berg, Paul Meyers, Clarence Bishop, Noel J. Polson, Emmitt C. Porter, William Bevan, Robert Orr and H. E. Stone.

Messrs. H. C. Sexton, personnel director of the "Celco" plant; J. W. Caulfield, formerly of the Drummondville, Canada, plant; K. W. Lucas, Princeton, W. Va., and C. A. Schreiner, works manager of the National Valve and Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh, were also present.

Final Rites Held In Moorefield for Mrs. Cunningham

The Rev. Allen Jones Conducts Services at Family Home

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 25.—Funeral services were conducted today at the home, for Mrs. Lillie Cunningham, widow of the late Arthur Cunningham, who died Monday after an illness of two years. The Rev. Allen Jones officiated and interment was in Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Cunningham, a native of Locust Grove, was the daughter of the late George and Margaret Seymour Williams. She had resided in Moorefield for the past twenty-five years.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. E. M. Hyde and Mrs. J. D. Chipley, both of Moorefield; one son, Thomas B. Cunningham, Moorefield; and three brothers, George T. Williams, Robert R. Williams, and Walter G. Williams, all of Moorefield.

Three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren also survive.

Eye Rites Held

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Mary Elita Crites Eye, at her home near Rig, who died Friday. The Rev. Charles Beard, Martinsburg and the Rev. Robert Barr, Rig, had charge of the service and interment was in Crites cemetery. Pallbearers were Fred Hardy, Clyde Hardy, Orville Eye, Jessie Eye, Roscoe Eye, Norman Newhouse.

Certificates Issued

The following persons were issued certificates to purchase new tires by the Hardy County Rationing Board last week:

Board of Education two bus tires, Carroll Orndorff, two truck tires, hauling feed, J. Bryan Lambert, two tires and two tubes (obsolete), S. C. Warden, two tires and two tubes (obsolete), H. W. Rollings Jr., one tire and one tube (obsolete), Asa Kline, two tires (obsolete) and Carroll Orndorff two tires and two tubes (obsolete).

Two of the above truck tires were charged against the passenger tire quota.

Named Administratrix

In recess of the county court Hattie V. Ours was appointed administratrix of the estate of Elmer D. Ours and posted bond of $100 with Evers E. Ours as surety. Virgil Crites, M. Dasher and C. C. Wise were named appraisers and C. C. Wise was appointed commissioner of accounts.

Consider New Course

The Inter-Civic Club Council, representing all organizations in Hardy county and Moorefield, will discuss in their member groups the necessity of a home economics course of instruction in the Moorefield high school so that that school may retain a Grade A rating.

It was pointed out by John T. St. Clair, principal of the school, that no instruction was now given to girls comparable to the V-o-a instructions for the boys. The home economics course will teach girls to cook, sew, maintain a home and prepare them for future usefulness in the home.

Quota Realized

For the first time since World War I days the Hardy County Chapter of the American Red Cross reached the quota set by the national organization with $1,256.88 subscribed on the $1,250 quota.

The $1,250 quota was in addition to the annual roll call quota of $450 which was set in the November and December drive. The larger quota was set for the special defense fund drive, with Ralph J. Bean as chairman.

Reford Aldridge Speaks at Rotary Dinner in Garrett

Grantsville Club Discusses Plans for National Charter Presentation

GRANTSVILLE, Feb. 25.—Reford Aldridge, Frostburg, was the principal speaker at the dinner and meeting of the recently organized Grantsville Rotary Club last evening. His subject was, "Community Service." Other visiting Rotarians included Arthur Taylor and Thomas Elias, of the Frostburg club, Messrs. W. D. Baker, W. R. Snyder, W. E. Gnasey, C. C. Cook, and the Rev. Samuel D. Sigler, of the Meyersdale club. About twenty-one local members were present.

Plans for the program on the occasion of the presentation of the local charter were discussed at length. The date for this meeting, which was originally set for March 10, has been changed to March 9. The affair is to be held at 6:30 o'clock in the social room of the Reformed church.

Dr. Thomas Beas, Keyser, W. Va., immediate past district governor, will be the speaker of the evening and Arthur Taylor, president of the Frostburg club, which sponsored the organization here, will serve as toastmaster.

The presentation of the charter is to be made by Chester J. Langdon, Huntington, Pa., governor of the 180 District Rotary International, and will be accepted by Harry C. Edwards, president of the local club. Other presentations are to be in charge of the toastmaster. Special music is scheduled to be furnished by the Legionette Quartet, of Keyser, W. Va., and Oakland Rotary Quartet, and group singing will be led by Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., with William Gibson, Oakland, as piano accompanist.

Lenten Services Revealed

At a meeting of local ministers last evening plans were outlined for special services to be held at the various churches here during the Lenten season. The sessions will begin Wednesday evening and follow on Wednesday evening of each week. The opening meeting will be at St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, the Rev. Alvin J. Forry, pastor. The second session will be held in the Methodist church, of which the Rev. Virgil R. Gillum is pastor, and the next at the Lutheran church, the Rev. Samuel D. Sigler, pastor. Following sessions will rotate according to the above outline, ending with observance on Good Friday in a joint afternoon service.

Edward Lipscomb, Jaunita Nestor Die in Accident

Parsons Couple Killed When Car Plunges over 75-Foot Embankment

PARSONS, W. Va., Feb. 25.—Edward Lipscomb, 35, Parsons, and Jaunita Nestor, 26, Parsons, were instantly killed when the car driven by Lipscomb, careened from the road and plunged over a seventy-five foot embankment early Tuesday morning, on Route 72, two and a half miles from Parsons.

Claud Strums, who lives close to the scene of the accident, told state police that he saw the automobile approaching slowly and suddenly it veered and plunged over the embankment. He said both occupants were dead when he reached the automobile.

An investigation conducted by Corp. G. W. Bush of the state police, and Sheriff Fred Long failed to disclose the cause of the accident. Sheriff Long said an inquest would not be necessary.

Mr. Lipscomb was the son of Arthur and Faith Lipscomb, Parsons. He was employed as a field representative of the state department of public assistance.

Surviving besides his parents, are three sisters, Mrs. Frank Summerfield, Gassaway; Miss Marie Lipscomb, Parsons; and Mrs. Cam Marsteller, Mill creek.

Miss Nestor, employed by the WPA as a recreation director, was the daughter of Lloyd and Alcinda Runner Nestor.

Besides her parents she is survived by four brothers, Tracy and Woodrow, both of Parsons; Gaye Nestor, Sheboygan, Wis.; and Faye Nestor, Clarksburg, W. Va.

Frank Lowney Perry Dies in Baltimore; Formerly of Cumberland

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25 (AP)—The body of Frank Lowney Perry, son of Cumberland's Judge Thomas Perry, was enroute to Chicago tonight for burial in the city of his adoption.

Perry died in South Baltimore General hospital Tuesday morning of pneumonia. He was 80.

The elderly electrician and inventor, who spent his boyhood in Cumberland, was said to have been the first to conceive of the idea of installing radios in airplanes.

He is survived by a half sister, Mrs. H. Crawford Black, of Baltimore; two half nephews, Henry Shriver, Cumberland banker, and James C. Shriver, Cumberland postmaster, and a step-nephew, Harry C. Black, of the Baltimore Sun staff.

His wife was the former Lucia Paulson of Chicago, who died in 1940.

Americans Sink

In another development today, the army announced that its heavy bombers destroyed two Japanese transports off Macassar in the Dutch Indies during the day, while pursuit planes, intercepting a flight of fifty Japanese bombers and 40 fighting planes over Soerabaja in Java, shot down one bomber and hit several others.

Defeat Japanese Force

Earlier, the army reported that a formation of seven American fighters in the East Indies routed a Japanese force more than three times its size, downing two planes, damaging six, and sending the rest scurrying for safety.

In the Atlantic meanwhile, the day brought word of two more United Nations ships sunk by U-boats, and on this score, Knox said that since Jan. 1, the navy has made fifty-six attacks on submarines, with three believed sunk and four believed damaged. In the same period submarines attacked 114 United Nations ships in the Western Atlantic. How many of these were sunk he did not say.

He and naval aides repeatedly emphasized that they would report only submarine sinkings of which the navy has absolute and unquestionable knowledge, and made these public only after sufficient time has elapsed for Berlin or Tokyo to become cognizant of their loss. This explains the lag in connection with various reports.

"There is evidence, however, of further sinkings of enemy submarines in Pacific waters but their announcement will not be made public until full reports have been made to the Navy department and absolute surety is determined."

He went on to say that before the war began "the pride of the Japanese merchant marine consisted of three 17,000 ton luxury ships of the Yawata class." One of these, he added, was known to have been converted into an aircraft carrier.

"The United States naval forces have sunk one merchantman of the Yawata class," he continued, "and one aircraft carrier of the same class, leaving only one such vessel known to be in service with the enemy."

Of submarine and anti-aircraft activities in the Atlantic, he had this to say:

"During January, 1942, twenty-two ships of the United Nations registry had torpedoes fired at them in waters contiguous to the United States. In addition thirty-eight ships were attacked in the area west of thirty degrees west longitude (which approximately divides the Atlantic in half). One enemy submarine is believed to have been sunk. Three are believed to have been damaged and thirty-four additional attacks were inconclusive in evidence of damage."

"In February, up to and including the twenty-third instant, twenty-three ships of the United Nations have been attacked by enemy submarines in United States coastal waters and thirty-one additional ships in the area west of thirty degrees west longitude. Two enemy submarines are believed to have been sunk and one damaged in these areas. In addition, fifteen attacks have been made on enemy submarines by our forces with inconclusive results."

The totals were: Fifteen combatant ships sunk three believed sunk and two damaged; thirty-eight non-

Japan Must Use Speed

Commenting on the Japanese losses authorized naval spokesmen said "they can't keep these losses up over a year with their building program."

To win under these conditions, they added, Japan would have to "make this a quick and fast war."

Knox broke down his summary of war against Japanese shipping as follows:

Battleships—One of the "Kongo class" damaged.
Aircraft carriers—One sunk, one believed sunk.
Cruisers—Two sunk.
Destroyers—Seven sunk, one believed sunk.
Submarines—Three sunk, one damaged.
Seaplane tenders—One believed sunk.
Minersweepers—One sunk.
Gunboats—One sunk.
Fleet tankers—Three sunk.
Transport—Thirteen sunk, two believed sunk.
Supplyships and merchantmen—Sixteen sunk.
Miscellaneous (type unidentified)—Six sunk, two believed sunk, three damaged.

The totals were: Fifteen combatant ships sunk three believed sunk and two damaged; thirty-eight non-combatant ships sunk, four believed sunk and three damaged.

The number of Japanese submarines sunk, said Knox, includes "only those sunk during the heroic defense of Wake island and during the recent raid on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands."

Submarine News Delayed

"In accordance with the established navy department policy submarine sinkings are never announced until it is reasonably certain that the enemy has become cognizant of their loss. This explains the lag in connection with various reports."

"There is evidence, however, of further sinkings of enemy submarines in Pacific waters but their announcement will not be made public until full reports have been made to the Navy department and absolute surety is determined."

He went on to say that before the war began "the pride of the Japanese merchant marine consisted of three 17,000 ton luxury ships of the Yawata class." One of these, he added, was known to have been converted into an aircraft carrier.

NASSIB MANSOR DIES IN WESTERNPORT CONFECTIONERY STORE

WESTERNPORT, Feb. 25—Nassib Mansor, 52, a native of the Republic of Lebanon, Asia, and a resident of Westernport for the past twenty-six years, died suddenly this evening at 5:15 o'clock in a confectionery store that he had operated since coming to this community.

Mr. Mansor had been ill for the past few weeks, suffering from a heart condition, and only stopped in the store for a short time each day to check operations, employees said. He had come in to do this when he was stricken, a clerk added. He died a short time later in the store without regaining consciousness. Employees said he was about to leave with a son, Nuser, when he suffered the attack.

Surviving besides his son, Nuser, are his widow, Martha; one daughter, Mrs. James Karam, Westernport; a brother, Charles Mansor, Zanesville, Ohio; and a sister, Mrs. Emily Sargis, Blair, Ohio.

Mr. Mansor was a member of St. Peter's Catholic church. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Col. Shingleton Is Taken by Death

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 25 (AP)—Col. P. D. Shingleton, 47, former state police superintendent and one-time state adjutant general, died today at his home in Charleston.

Col. Shingleton was personnel and safety director of the Atlantic Greyhound Bus Lines at the time of his death. He had been seriously ill for two weeks.

He became state police superintendent March 4, 1933, by appointment of former Governor H. G. Kump and served until February, 1937.

An adjutant general was not named and Shingleton also filled that post in addition to his duties as head of the department of public safety.

and girdles—because of the "acute rubber situation, when every pound of rubber saved contributes to the war program."

Every effort would be made, he said, to provide the industry with other materials for production of essential foundation garments.

In this connection, a spokesman for the Associated Corset and Brassiere Manufacturers declared that the industry was "determined to use all possible ingenuity to produce as satisfactory garments as can be made with whatever materials are available."

It was reported that manufacturers are experimenting with a type of girle made of cloth and given stretching qualities by employment of knitted "gussets."

"The industry feels sure that the women of America will meet the situation without complaint," the spokesman said, "and will co-operate to the limit of their abilities—especially by conserving, through proper care, those garments they now own."

Cannelton Coal Co. Man and Baptist Church Member Says "As a Splendid Laxative Aid, I Don't Think It Can Be Beat"

Mr. William Arthur, House B42, Cannelton, near Charleston, W. Va., although only in his middle twenties, has already felt the distressing results of constipation. He is quoted by his wife, as follows:

"Because of constipation and the ailments it brought about I wanted to be by myself, for I seemed always complaining. Rheumatic-like kidney pains in my back interfered with my work and my sleep at night was so broken that I'd get up mornings feeling frightfully nervous, tired and irritable. Dizzy spells would bring spots passing in front of my eyes and often brought on sick headaches. Gas, bloating, heartburn and belching of acid-like liquids would come after eating and my skin had many pimples and other ugly skin blemishes. I caught colds easily and my pep was pretty low."

"Those frightful gas pains seem done away with and I'm not catching such colds since World's Tonic brought such wonderful relief from constipation and the ailments it caused. The rheumatic-like kidney pains are not coming so in my back, and sound sleep at night seems to be taking care of my nervousness. My skin seems clearer and the dizzy spells are not bothering me, either."

Hardwicke Won Early Fame as Stage Comic

Probably not more than half a dozen fellow actors know that Sir Cedric Hardwicke, currently featured in Walter Wanger's "Sundown" at the Maryland theater, won his knighthood for being the outstanding comedian of England. It was not until he was knighted that he began to play serious roles. Ever since then no one has thought of him as a comedian.

Born in Worcestershire, the son of a doctor, young Hardwicke continually upset the dignity of his home by fantastic productions of Shakespeare. With such goings-on, his father wisely sent him to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. When he finally got on the stage he attracted attention by tripping and falling flat on his face. Followed an African tour in which he played Shakespeare and then came World War I and France. When he finally returned to the theater, he got more experience with a repertory company in Birmingham.

In Galapagos, in the Pacific ocean, sea lions climb trees if the trunks are not too steep, since there is no dry, sandy beach.

ONE OF THESE MUST DIE

Bruce Cabot, Reginald Gardiner and George Sanders sense trouble ahead in this tense scene from Walter Wanger's "Sundown," the romantic adventure romance which will begin an engagement at the Maryland theater, today.

ABBOTT AND COSTELLO RETURN

Abbott, Costello Are Popular Comedians

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, rated Hollywood's most sensational box-office drawing cards, who come tomorrow to the Liberty theater in Universal's new laughfilm, "Ride 'Em Cowboy," have definitely cast their lot with the screen. The two zanies, recruited from the footlights, not only are investing their heavy earnings in Southern California real estate, but they've even gone so far as to chart their separate courses against an era when cinema audiences no longer want them as a mirth-generating team.

The dour-faced Abbott plans, when his comedy days are finished, to turn to fast-talking character roles. The rotund Costello, however, intends to stow away his make-up kit and turn his talents to talkie direction.

Abbott is exceptionally capable in parts requiring the spouting of dialog at a machine-gun clip. Costello is a master of comedy timing, and his directorial suggestions have figured prominently in the amazing success of Universal's Abbott and Costello features.

Heading the cast playing in their support in "Ride 'Em Cowboy" are Dick Foran, Anne Gwynne, Johnny Mack Brown, Samuel S. Hinds, The Merry Macs, Ella Fitzgerald and many others.

Adam, Eve in Modern Eden Is New Film Plot

A star combination that proved itself so successful with its first appearance, is again due to hit the nation's screens. The lovely blonde Madeleine Carroll and the stalwart blonde Stirling Hayden who were so well paired in "Virginia," are coming Saturday to the Strand theater in their new co-starring Paramount technicolor film, "Bahama Passage."

"Bahama Passage," which is based on Nelson Hayes' best-selling novel, "Dildo Cay," tells the story of a girl who comes to the salt-producing island in the West Indies and takes the heart of its owner by storm. Advance reports have it that romantic excitement rides unusually high when, after a series of thrilling adventures, the two are left entirely alone on the island—a modern Adam and Eve in a garden paradise.

In her role of the girl who knows what she wants and how to get it, the blonde star turns in one of her best performances to date. Hayden fulfills the promise of stardom he gave in "Virginia." The women, especially, who were intrigued by his looks and acting in his first picture, will find him a completely fascinating romantic hero.

Supporting the two stars are the renowned stage star Flora Robson, Cecil Kellaway and Leo G. Carroll, and the lovely little brunette starlet Mary Anderson.

Eerie Windfall Left By "Smiling Ghost"

The next eerie mystery picture of Warner Brothers films will be a lot easier to produce. It will inherit from the latest of its ilk a lot of brand new, improved or simply "bigger and better" effects, to add to the store the studio effects wards already had to draw upon.

The picture which donates these windfalls is "The Smiling Ghost," now playing at the Garden theater. For example, there are the sound effects which, in the new comedy-mystery thriller, wrought such havoc on the nerves and nonchalance of Wayne Morris, Brenda Marshall, Alexis Smith and others in the picture.

A new one, added to the sound effects laboratory by the picture, may be imagined by those who have heard a saw played as a musical instrument. It was, in fact, produced with a saw blade, but not by the usual violin-bow method.

This super-shudder of sound was wrenched from the saw by the blow of a felt-padded hammer, the blade being held in a special sounding-board clamp.

"The Stork Pays Off," Columbia's merry farce featuring "Blaple" Maxie Rosenbloom, Victor Jory and Rochelle Hudson, closes its laugh-provoking run at the Garden today.

Burnette's Original Plans Were Thwarted

Smiley Burnette, filmdom's roly poly ambassador of goodwill, arrived in Hollywood seven years ago with the idea of enacting leading men—or at least "straight" roles.

But the fact that he speedily found out comedy was his forte had been to his everlasting profit. For he promptly became the featured comedian in the series of musical westerns produced by Republic and starring Gene Autry, and within a short time was in the "most popular" ranks among screen actors.

"Cowboy Serenade" which starts at noon today at the Embassy theater, is the latest teaming Autry and the rotund Smiley.

Smiley had been associated with Autry in the pre-screen days, taking part in the National Barn Dance show over Chicago's radio station WLS. They arrived in Hollywood in 1935 for their first picture work in the Mascot serial, "Phantom Empire." Smiley's part in the serial was "straight"—he was one of Autry's chief aides. Pans, however, regarded Smiley's antics as meant to be funny and laughed their heads off.

Therefore when Mascot became Republic Pictures, and Autry signed to star in a series of musical westerns, Smiley became the second half of the team with the job of making laughs. His popularity boomed with Gene's until now in pace, like a household word in every American home.

Quiet minds can not be perplexed or frightened, but go on in fortune or misfortune at their own private pace, like a clock during a thunder storm.—R. L. STEVENSON

Tops Sunday School League Scorers

Presbyterians' MacFarlane Has Best Average

Winner Registers 105 Points while MacFarlane Gathers 103

John Cox, of First Baptist, scored the most points during the 1941-42 Cumberland Sunday School Junior League's regular season. Cox, a member of the Presbyterian combination, had high average.

Cox, in ten games, pounded the hoops for 105 points, an average of ten and one-half a contest, while MacFarlane, in nine battles, collected 103 markers for an average of slightly over eleven.

MacFarlane led in field goals with thirty while Otis Sterne, another member of the Presbyterian crew who finished in third place with twenty-four counters, garnered forty-four.

John Cox, with forty-two double-doubles, had the most chances at the foul stripe, forty-seven, and made twenty-one of his tosses count to win the scoring race at the championship line.

Wayne Ansel Fourth

Wayne Ansel of St. John's was fourth with ninety-one points while Roy Edwards of Presbyterian was fifth with seventy-one. Walter Davis of St. Luke's sixth with sixty-nine and Charles Praskas of St. Luke's seventh with sixty-seven.

Other boys who scored over fifty points were William Heinrich of Centre Street, sixty-five; Keeseker of Grace Methodist, sixty-one; Ray De of First Methodist, fifty-eight; and Ernest Painter of Centre Street, fifty-three, and Walter Lashley of Trinity, fifty-one. Forty-eight of the more than 100 cagers took part in loop skirmishing, tallied fifteen or more points.

Individual records for one game during the season were rung up by Sterne of Presbyterian with thirteen field goals and Cox of First Baptist with six free throws.

Presbyterians Hit Hoops

Presbyterian, which won one game by forfeit, amassed a total of 138 points in compiling a perfect league record, and also had the best defensive mark in allowing opposing outfits 141 tallies. This is an average of nearly forty points a game to almost sixteen for clubs played.

Presbyterian and St. Paul's shared the most-points-in-one-game record with fifty-eight while First Methodist, St. Luke's and First Baptist tied for the most fouls in one contest, seven. Individual and team records follow:

Corp. Carl Named 93 Enemy Aliens Liaison Officer Register Here

Persons in Doubt about Citizenship Advised To See Frank L. Storm

Will Co-ordinate Enforcement Agencies with Defense Organization

Corp. Harold Carl of the Maryland State Police has been appointed liaison officer to serve with headquarters of the Allegany county civilian defense organization as go-between for all city, county and state enforcement bodies in order to co-ordinate and integrate the work of defense units and enforcement groups.

Corp. Carl was appointed Tuesday by Col. Beverly Ober, superintendent of state police, at a meeting held in Pikesville. Corp. Thomas Currie was appointed liaison officer for Garrett county with the same duties.

Will Co-ordinate Police Work

Appointment of assistants to aid in liaison work will be announced later by Corp. Carl. His most important duty will be to co-ordinate all protective forces such as city police and county authorities in joint activities to prevent duplication of tasks during emergencies, Col. Ober noted.

Control of traffic on state highways in time of emergency cannot be adequately done without the aid of auxiliary police and other civilian defense units, Col. Ober said, and Corp. Carl is entrusted with the task of familiarizing these groups with plans already mapped out for such times.

A state-wide plan for uniform traffic warning devices to be used during time of alerts and blackouts is being worked out. This was decided upon so as to make it possible for all motorists to understand the signals no matter what part of the state they are in such emergencies, Col. Ober added.

Corp. Carl will be on detached duty with the state police and maintain headquarters at the LaVale barracks although he will not be able to devote as much time to regular state police work. His main job now is to facilitate the smooth operation between enforcement authorities and civilian defense units of the program.

Ingram Pleased with Setup

Vincent P. Ingram, civilian defense director for Allegany county, met with Corp. Carl yesterday and expressed himself as pleased at the new setup and he said it would greatly aid in operation of the program in this area.

Corp. Carl will familiarize himself with each agency with which he is accredited, as to its personnel, function, equipment, emergency plans, and communications system. This will enable him to determine future action in emergencies, Col. Ober pointed out.

Plane "Bombs" LaVale in Test Of Defense Units

A simulated air raid alarm was held in the LaVale section last night from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. with a local civilian pilot and a "bomber" pelting various points up with "bombs" made of sacks of lime.

The test was the first in this area for civilian defense units and R. W. Snyder, chief of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Department, said the "raid" revealed glaring weaknesses and at the same time emphasized how trained personnel can cope with any emergency that might arise.

Direct Hits Scored

The plane piloted by Sandford Jenkins, and with Ewald Ruehl as "bomber" flying at 150 feet actually scored direct hits on a gasoline storage tank at the Gulf Oil station; three cars parked in front of a garage near the fire station and on a home on School street in LaVale.

Using both telephone and a messenger service, bomb squads and the fire truck were dispatched to the various points of "attack" from the control center in the fire station.

Grocery trucks were pressed into service to act as emergency ambulances and "victims" were given first aid on the spot and later taken to casualty stations. One "victim" was taken to the fire station basement where a first aid class was in session and members of the class received the benefits of seeing how to treat such persons.

Test Various Units

Other calls were received for "gas victims" and persons "caught beneath" debris when bombs "exploded" in residential sections. Units of the civilian defense were massed both at the fire station and at points in the area.

At one time the fire truck was out on a "call" and word was received of two "fires" in another section. Chief Snyder used this as an illustration of the vital need of equipment. The air raid wardens were under the leadership of J. W. Ritchie while the medical unit was led by Elmer Lancaster. About 250 persons participated. The only thing missing during the test was the use of a "blackout."

Delayed Induction Of Draftees Ends After March 16

Local draft board officials received word yesterday that effective March 16 men inducted into the army will not be given the usual ten-day delay before being assigned to an army post. Draftees in the meantime will be allowed the ten-day period.

In cases of necessity the delayed induction system will be allowed it was added. Most of the men called for service after March 16 will start on their military training at once following acceptance after physical examinations are made in Baltimore.

Local draft officials were notified that now "we are in the war" further changes of regulations may be expected. Men named by local boards for induction between now and March 16 will follow regulations in force during the past few months and can take advantage of the delayed induction system.

'Victory Garden' School Scheduled At YMCA Today

University of Maryland Specialists among Speakers for Session

"Gardens for victory" will be the theme of an all-day garden school to be held at Central YMCA today under the auspices of the agriculture committee of the women's division of the Maryland Council of Defense.

Of particular importance this year in view of the national effort for increased food production to implement the war program, the school will be open to all men, women and youths interested in gardening knowledge.

The school will open at 10 a. m., with Mrs. Arthur Phillips, of Lonaconing, county agricultural chairman, presiding.

Speakers will include four experts from the University of Maryland Extension Service, H. A. Hunter, canning specialist, W. R. Ballard, vegetable and landscape gardening specialist; A. P. Vierheller, horticulturalist; and C. Graham, entomologist.

Other speakers will be R. C. Wilson, president of the Allegany County Farm Bureau; Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent; R. F. McHenry, county farm agent; and Mrs. W. L. Maddocks, president of the County Council of Homemakers Clubs.

The session will close with a forum on the topic, "Where Do We Go from Here?"

TALBOT COUNTY OFFICE BUILDING—Talbot County's new office building, recently completed at a cost of $65,000, now houses the county library, health department, state laboratory, agricultural conservation department, county agent, home demonstration agent, board of education and county welfare board. The colonial type brick structure, located on the court house square at Easton, also has a large and small auditorium.

V.F.W. Commander Will Be Honored At Baltimore

Local Delegation Expects To Attend Banquet for Max Singer

The Department of Maryland, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will give a banquet in the Emerson hotel in Baltimore, Saturday night at 7 o'clock in honor of Max Singer of Boston, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, according to an announcement received here last night from Adam A. Novak, Department of Maryland commander.

Singer will be entertained at a banquet to which Governor Herbert O'Connor; Mayor Howard W. Jackson; of Baltimore; Major General Milton A. Reckord and other distinguished personalities have been invited to attend. Representatives of all service organizations will be present.

Since World War No. 1, in which he served overseas with the United States Navy, Commander-in-Chief Singer has achieved nation-wide recognition in two widely divergent fields. He is the 1941-42 Commander-in-Chief of the V. F. W. of the United States to which office he was unanimously elected at the Forty-second Annual National Encampment in Philadelphia. He is also, one of the country's ranking fingerprint experts, attached to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation of the Boston Police Department.

Singer's rise to leadership in the V. F. W. began approximately twenty years ago. He was educated in the public schools of New York City and studied criminal law with the Massachusetts State Department of University Extension.

Singer is expected to devote part of his speech Saturday night to the V. F. W. to support and co-operate in any program that will successfully combat the forces of disunity which he says "today are creating doubt and confusion in the ranks of our people."

A delegation from Henry Hart Post 1411, V. F. W. of this city expects to attend the banquet.

Paralytic Stroke Is Fatal to Mrs. Valeria McElfish

Widow of Alva O. McElfish Dies Here in Memorial Hospital

Mrs. Valeria Frances Thompson McElfish, 66, widow of Alva O. McElfish, died in Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock of a paralytic stroke. Mrs. McElfish made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Gusteen Linaburg, 618 Lincoln street, who is secretary in the state's attorney's office.

A native of Flintstone, Mrs. McElfish was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thompson. Her husband died in 1937.

A member of Colfax Rebecca Lodge No. 1, Mrs. McElfish received the Decoration of Chivalry from that organization. She was also a member of Canton Ladies Auxiliary, Odd Fellows; the Happy Service Club of the First Methodist church and the Ladies Bible Class of the church.

Surviving, besides her daughter, is one sister, Mrs. Beattie O'Baker, this city.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gusteen Linaburg, 618 Lincoln street, by the Rev. George E. Baughman, pastor of the First Methodist church. Interment will be in the I.O.O.F. cemetery, Flintstone.

Cumberland Negro Is Oldest Man Ever Granted Pardon in Maryland

Governor Pardons Daniel Banks for Offense Committed 48 Years Ago

Governor O'Connor last night granted a partial pardon to Daniel Banks, 70-year-old Cumberland negro, for an offense committed nearly a half-century ago, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Annapolis.

As a result of the governor's action, Banks became the oldest man ever to be pardoned in Maryland.

Sentenced in circuit court here to two years in 1894 for stealing a $7 watch, the elderly Pine avenue negro was released from the penitentiary even before Governor O'Connor was born.

In pardoning Banks, former porter and hotel attendant, O'Connor declared that "it is a source of wonderment to parole officers that no application for pardon has ever been presented in his behalf before" and pointed out that all three judges of the circuit at the time, the prosecuting attorney and the defense counsel have died during the interim.

The governor added that Banks "has not broken the law since his release from prison" and cited his steady employment.

The negro was one of five former convicts granted partial pardons by the governor last night. One of the others was Junius A. Love, 65, former Washington county legislator.

O'Connor cited Love's satisfactory record, which resulted in his parole in December, 1940.

The former legislator was sentenced to two years for assault with intent to murder in 1939 after being convicted of wounding a tenant with a shotgun during an argument about equipment in a store which Love had rented.

Gaffney Resigns Post with FBI

Former City Detective Will Rejoin Local Force Soon

Former City Detective B. Frank Gaffney has handed his resignation to J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, effective March 1, and will return to his former position as detective on the 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. shift early next week, police authorities said yesterday.

Gaffney was one of the seven members of the Baltimore city, Maryland state and county police who were asked last December to accept posts with the FBI, following a three months training course in the techniques of the federal law enforcement agency.

The local officer accepted the federal post with the understanding that he could return to his former position on the police force here.

Gaffney has been stationed in Huntington, W. Va., during most of his employment with the FBI, local police said.

Three Men Re-enlist In Navy at Local Recruiting Station

Three men re-enlisted yesterday at the local navy recruiting station, according to Chief Petty Officer George J. Carroll. They are Calvert P. Steed, Huntington, W. Va.; and Victor Spotts and Douglas J. Carter, both of Keyser, W. Va.

Spotts and Carter were firemen first class during their previous enlistments and will probably rejoin a naval unit in a short time, Chief Carroll, said.

Mr. and Mrs. William Meagher, Cresaptown, have received word of the safety of their son, Howard Meagher, stationed with the United States Navy in Honolulu.

Two Divorces Granted In Circuit Court

Two divorces were granted yesterday in circuit court.

Mrs. Audrey H. Boyd was granted an absolute divorce from James Boyd, while Mary H. Carter won her marital freedom from C. Richard Carter.

Mrs. Boyd, represented by Harold E. Naughton, attorney, was granted the right to resume her maiden name, Audrey H. Brown. Mrs. Carter, whose attorney was William R. Carscaden, won the right to resume her maiden name, Mary Katherine Holmes.

Class in Morse Code Begins Course Here Friday Night at 7:30

The first class of instruction here in the Continental Morse code will be held Friday night at 7:30 o'clock in Room 8, second floor of the Public Safety building.

The course, being held under the auspices of the Western Maryland Amateur Radio Club, will be instructed by a group of men under the direction of E. Leo Morrissey, chief instructor.

Only ten persons will attend each class as the apparatus is concentrated atop a table within a small area, officials said. Following the initial class Friday, classes will be held each week on Monday nights, Wednesday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock and at night at 7:30 o'clock and Friday nights at the same time.

Berlin Postmaster Is Taken by Death

Edward B. Walker, 65, postmaster of Berlin, Pa., died yesterday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock in Memorial hospital where he has been a patient since February 7.

A son of the late Henry Walker, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret McQuade Walker; his mother and several children.

Health Forces in Maryland, According to an announcement by Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the state department of health, are co-operating actively in the nation-wide campaign now under way, for the protection of all young children not already immunized against diphtheria and smallpox.

The campaign was started in response to the urgent request in President Roosevelt's child health day proclamation, asking that these special services be carried on during the period between now and the first day of May, which has been officially designated by an act of Congress, as child health day.

The campaign is sponsored, Dr. Riley said, by the Conference of State Provincial Health Authorities of North America, which includes the directors of all state and territorial health departments of the United States, Mexico, and Canada, and by the United States Children's Bureau, the United States Department of Education, the United States Public Health Service, state and local health departments and the public schools are also co-operating.

Diphtheria is particularly hard on young children, and experience has shown, Dr. Riley explained, that the most favorable time for a child to be protected against the disease is when it is between six months and a year old. Nearly all young children are very susceptible to it and there is always danger that the child who has not been protected against diphtheria will take it from some other child or from somebody who has had the disease and may be a "carrier" of it. Consequently, while the current campaign aims especially to reach children under a year old, who have not been safeguarded against diphtheria, it is being arranged for the benefit of all young children for whom the service has been neglected.

"The desirability of vaccinating children against smallpox before they are a year old, or soon after, holds good," Dr. Riley continued, "with regard to smallpox, as well as to diphtheria. Owing to the fact that Maryland has a law which requires children to be vaccinated, and which prohibits children from being enrolled in any public school in the state if they have not been vaccinated, there is less chance of finding young children in Maryland who have not been protected against that disease than there is of finding those for whom protection against diphtheria has been neglected."

"It is strongly hoped that the attention that is being attracted by the president's proclamation to the importance of having the children protected against both of these diseases, will remind parents who have neglected to have it done, to take their (Continued on Page 14, Col. 4)
